
Subject: Re: Geane crashes in PndPidCorrelator
Posted by Stefano Spataro on Sun, 07 Mar 2010 15:57:29 GMT
View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

In general "Geane crashes" (even if that is not a geane crashes but a crash in FairGeanePro) do not depend on "events" or particle type, but on singularity on some kind of calcuation.

Without using exactly the same random chain is almost impossible to reproduce them. I think it would be better to produce a "reco" file which crashes at the pid stage, and to use it as starting point for the debug.
