Subject: How about a 'Linux Support' Forum ?
Posted by Walter F.J. Müller on Mon, 18 Oct 2004 15:58:03 GMT

Olaf's finding, that physics or technical issues are barely discussed in the forum, can be easily verified by a look at the statistics.

Maybe this medium has better accepance when it comes to IT issues. So why not add one or two forums on GSI IT support in an appropriate cathegory ? Things like the RootTalk forum seem to work when there is somebody behind answering all the questions.