Actually we already are in the migration process and almost all newly installed servers will be installed with Sarge.

Some Testservers (i386 and amd64) are already available for a few test users.

Soon hopefully more test servers will become available for a broader community of testers.

Anyhow I'm planning some redesign of the farm clients infrastructure but am involved in a lot of other important projects.

So unfortunately an update of the interactive clients and the batch farm may not happen before Q4 2005 depending on the redesign progress.

Regards,
Christopher
