

---

Subject: all code open to public?

Posted by Anonymous Poster on Tue, 05 Aug 2008 10:44:02 GMT

View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

---

Hi everybody,

I would like to know your opinion about the fact that all our code is open to the public. I can even quickly search for code I wrote, by googleing for coding habits of mine. Actually a friend of mine told me that one of the top 5 google hits for the search 'dreggn' (talking about bad habits) is a source file I wrote for PANDA.

I don't think this is such a great idea. I don't think we gain anything from putting the code on the open web. But as long as we think about some kind of licensing, it is probably the intellectual property of ours or our employers.

Not that I claim that any of the code we write is spectacularly exciting, but...

Cheers, Christian

---