Hi everyone,

I recieved some experience fom another experiment and stumbled over a centralized logging system with these features:
- colored output to distinguish easiely different contexts.
- Developer call global functions, handled by their framework
- Debug-levels handled there

We could get rid of some messy text with such funcionalities. If we have "manpower" some day and Mohammed some spare time....

Regards, Ralf.