If someone is planning to send a report about software activities, please let us know!

Dear Colleague,

GSI operates a large-scale worldwide unique accelerator facility for heavy ions, which offers outstanding opportunities for research in the fields of hadron and nuclear physics, atomic physics, dense plasma research, material science, biophysics, and radiation medicine. As every year, the GSI Scientific Report illustrates the richness and excellence of the research performed at our institute. In relation to the scientific work done at and for GSI and the future FAIR facility in 2015, all scientists are invited to contribute to the GSI Scientific Report 2015 with scientific results, methodological developments and instrumental achievements.

Please submit your abstract until March 21th and your final contribution March 31th:

<https://indico.gsi.de/event/sr-2015>

Detailed instructions and templates for LaTeX and Word are provided on this website (see below). You are not allowed to change those templates or to re-use contributions from other publications like progress or annual reports. The contributions will undergo a review procedure with respect to layout and content prior to publication. The review phase will be completed on April 30th. The final report will be published online in the GSI repository:

DOI:10.15120/GR-2016-1 . The GSI Scientific Report 2014 is available at:

<https://repository.gsi.de/record/185629> . For questions please contact (sr-2015@gsi.de or +496159 71-2610).

Thank you for supporting the GSI Scientific Report!

Thomas Stöhlker
